Streamlining Dangerous Goods Compliance for Distillery Exports

A well-established distillery was exporting high-value products worldwide and faced growing complexity in meeting DG labelling requirements.

Trident delivered a streamlined solution - reducing risk, improving packing efficiency, and keeping every shipment moving with confidence.

The Challenge

Applying several separate DG labels by hand on each shipment was creating recurring issues.

Most pressing was carrier refusal - transport operators would spot the improper marking and labelling and decline to load the consignment, leaving high-value stock stranded.

On top of that came missed or incorrect labels, time lost on checks and corrections, and growing compliance risk. For a distillery exporting on tight schedules, even a small delay meant real consequences.

The Solution

Trident replaced multiple separate labels with one fully customised, all-in-one DG solution, that was quicker to apply, reducing the risk of errors and always compliant.

Our solution is built to BS5609 Marine Grade specification and fully aligned with ADR, IMDG, and IATA regulations. When the rules change, our designs change with them.

Fewer missing or misplaced labels

Faster packing

Consistent shipments

One label, fully compliant

Result

The new labelling process has made a clear difference. Shipments now go out faster, with far less risk of error, and the team has full confidence that every one is compliant before it leaves.

What was once a recurring issue is now a reliable, repeatable part of their export routine.

Faster Dispatch

The distillery saw a significant reduction in labelling time per shipment.

Time Back

The distillery gained measurable hours of labour back every year.

Lower Risk

The distillery reduced its compliance risk from day one.

Why Trident?
